

ANNUAL TOWN MEETING VERY POORLY ATTENDED

For years men have been giving their services one time to administering the affairs of the town to the best of their ability. At the annual ratemakers meeting the were rewarded by one ratemayer, A. R. Yates, having appreciation enough to turn out to hear his representatives reports and thank them for their time and efforts they have given.

Now it is almost impossible to find men interested enough in their home town to come forward and administer the affairs of the town from the council chamber since those men who have served the public get nothing, pay their taxes, and cannot be expected to go on forever.

One taxpayer suggests that the mayor and councilors be paid for his remuneration for their services and consideration be given that they pay no taxes for their work. By doing this the community would not necessarily be better served but at least these men would receive a little more than no recognition for their work and efforts.

At the meeting the following were present:

One Mayor—W. E. Thompson.
One Councilor—L. M. Michael.
One Secretary—W. J. Phyllips.
One Treasurer—A. R. Yates.
No School Trustees.
That was all.

And now for the annual report: The assessment of the town for this year of five mills for municipal purposes is the lowest in the history of the town. This was made possible by a portion of the taxes which had been built up over a number of years, by the collection of old tax arrears and from the proceeds of the recovery property which had been sold and placed back on the tax roll, to meet the current expenditures. During the year the town invested $2,600 in Victory Bonds. Several properties which had reverted to the town through tax sale proceedings were sold and put back on the tax roll and will now be revenue bearing. The uncollected municipal taxes at the end of 1942 show a decrease of approximately $3,800 over 1942, which is partially due to property under tax consolidation being cancelled off the roll. There was no unemployment relief. Indigent relief was very small as compared with previous years. An inspection of the town was made by the municipal inspector and in his report he stated that at the end of 1942 the town was in better financial position than ever before in its history, with no debentures or liabilities.

Two fires were reported during the year which the fire brigade responded without delay. One was a chimney fire which was quickly brought under control. The other was a fire which broke out in a residence and had gained a good start before the alarm could be given it was not possible to save the building. Tip chemical equipment, while in good condition is inadequate to handle a fire that has gained a good start. The fire hall is in fair shape.

The police report shows a number of minor complaints had been filed and were promptly dealt with. No convictions under town by-laws were filed. Police control was maintained at the discretion of the police department in co-operation with the R.C.M.P.

The health of the town had been very good. No contagious diseases were reported. There was no inspection of the town by the provincial health inspector. The local board of health, in co-operation with the Town Council issued orders to the residents who have all patients appear and maintained in a sanitary condition. One residence was condemned due to filth and the unsanitary condition under which the goods were living. The premises were ordered cleaned and fumigated.

All streets in town were graded and dragged several times and repairs were made where necessary. Culverts and ditches were cleaned out and kept in good condition. Sidewalks were repaired as required. Every effort was made to keep them in as good shape as possible. The roof of the Community Hall was given attention as the town was in the matter of re-roofing the hall was under discussion, and it is possible that this will have to be undertaken when and as the material becomes available in order to protect the interior of the hall. The revenue from the hall has dropped somewhat due to the falling off of the picture show and the fact that the hall is made available free for war purposes.

The water supply situation became more serious during the year and there was a possibility that with the present supply and condition of the system, that the school would not be able to operate. It was therefore decided that it would be necessary to locate a new well. Arrangements were made with the school board to drill a well on the school property which would not only insure a good supply for the school at all times but would also increase the supply to the town well, was drilled on the school grounds and an ample supply of water was available. The cost of the well and pumping equipment was $1,171. The water system is not in good shape and some provision will need to be made for its renewal. If the water system is to be maintained, the pressure would appear to be sufficient to all domestic purposes. There are not as many connections of which several are not at present being used.

The irrigation system has been maintained in good condition. 64 per cent of water was pumped through the system from May to September. No shortages of water were reported. The S. A. Everetts Home through their own pumping unit take water from the lake for their use. They pay the town $21 a year.

Mr. Yates brought up the question of the appearance of the town. He stated that the weeds in town had been neglected and in some cases covered the sidewalks. This condition, he said, gave visitors to the town a very bad impression and cited one particular where the unsightly appearance of the town in weeds had been directly responsible for the loss of the sale of property. He strongly emphasized that weeds should be kept down and the appearance of the town be given more attention. He also drew attention to some minor repairs that should be made to sidewalks on Convent Street and Griestrick Street.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the members of the council and particularly to the retiring members for their untiring efforts and good work done for the town. The report was very well received. Four meetings had been held during the year. A van service is run in co-operation with the Nor Valley School Board. Minor repairs were made to school buildings and new radiators had been installed. A reference library is now available for full school courses. The retiring trustees are G. H. Farquharson and W. J. McKay. They have since been re-elected to office by acclamation.

U.F.W.A. LADIES HOLD THEIR REGULAR MEETING

Mrs. J. W. Hutchison was hostess to the ladies of the U.F.W.A. at their last meeting. In opening the meeting two songs were sung which was followed by roll call and was answered by an outstanding event for 1942.

Letters had been received from the Trade Board regarding consumers affairs. Mrs. Nelson kindly consented to look after these for 1943. A very interesting letter from the U.F.W.A. president, Mrs. Ross, was received regarding Red Cross. Mrs. F. Sammons gave out wool for knitting and Mrs. H. Burne sent material for quilts to be made by the members. Mrs. Quinnell, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. McLeay, Mrs. MacArthur and Mrs. Sammons volunteered to make five quilts. Any member desiring to see the materials from Red Cross.

As Mrs. Quinnell is suffering from a severe cold Mrs. Nunn kindly offered her home for an afternoon to make three quilts. Mrs. Unbrink volunteered for lunch. After a delicious lunch the meeting adjourned to meet on February 11th at the home of Mrs. A. N. McLeay.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO AID RUSSIA FUND REQUESTED

It is now possible for the people of this vicinity to give to the Aid Russia Fund T. H. Beach will help.

We do not have to tell a story of how badly the Russians need assistance. One can easily visualize that with huge armies moving back and forth over the country laying it waste. Also consider what a job we would have to do to defeat the German people.

If you think the Russian people are worth helping then drop in and leave a donation with Mr. Beach. Any sum no matter how large or how small will be gladly accepted.

BILL BEAR CHIEF BLACKFOOT INDIAN DIED LAST WEEK

Bill Bear Chief, a well known and well educated Blackfoot Indian, died last week at his home after a lengthy illness.

Bill was about 10 years old when Treaty was signed in 1877. The Quarter Master Sergeant of the R. C. M. P. in the Treaty Camp at Blackfoot Crossing, was James Starbuck. He was left by Col. McLeod to issue rations to the Indians until such time as an official of the Indian Department was appointed.

One day while on a tour of his duties, he found a small boy, the parents were lost in the sandhills, southeast of Gleichen; he picked him up and took him into camp. This boy was Bill Bear Chief. When Sgt. Starbuck was relieved he took Bill with him to the McLeod Barracks, where he found a maternal for the troops. A little uniform was made for him and among his duties, Bill was to shine shoes.

J.M.S. Stanford left the Mounted Police shortly afterwards to take a position with a bank banking concern in Great Falls, Montana, since he had become attached to Bill he took him along. He was a bachelor and lived with his mother and sister. They were very much pleased to have the young Indian but he remained. He was put to school and lived with the McLeods until he was about 12 years old. His fancy lively turned to thoughts of love for a girl from his own people. About the same time Mr. Stanford returned to the same thoughts. It was decided that Bill should go back to his own people.

Eventually he returned to the Blackfoot Reserve and was married. James Stanford prospered and became the president of the leading bank and had many other interests. He also became a colonel in the United States Army and for many years was known to old timers as Col. James Stanford.

He never forgot Bill and his family; he visited them on numerous occasions. In the late twenties Bill and Minnie visited him in Great Falls. The Colonel put them up at a good hotel and gave Bill $5 per day for spending money. It was a grand time for them and they didn't hurry back home. "Jim" as Bill always called him, passed on a few years ago. But maybe they'll be meeting again when the old stories can be retold and the pemican and tobacco pipe passed around.

We know that Bill will always be remembered as a polite, fine old Indian and will be missed.

He was a member of the English Church, and leaves behind his widow, son, Walker and a daughter, Mrs. Paul Fox.

HOCKEY
Although not in condition for playing hockey the Meadowbrook team put up a good game and made the Gunners earn their goals, Saturday night at the arena. The score was Gunners 11 Meadowbrook 1.

NEWS FLASHES FROM THE LOCAL ARMOURIES

The Second 22nd Battery had a muster parade and kit inspection on Friday night, February 6th, when the district paymaster called the roll.

There were quite a few mislaid—even some who have lost all the pay they had earned during the year because they did not answer their names! And that is not all. They must bring their kit for inspection before February 20th.

Recruits between 35 and 55 are needed in Gleichen.

Bassano is recruiting. Why cannot some of the good old curriers join here and show our neighbors that there is still life in the old town.

BOMBER PRESS PAY VISIT TO WAR SERVICES

Another of a series of articles written by W. R. Legge and C. V. Charrier, who represented the Canadian War Newspapers Association in a recent tour overseas.

The Canadian government has taken over the financing of all war services with the exception of the Red Cross which the international convention stipulates must be entirely free of government control. This step has relieved the country from a multiplicity of campaigns for funds.

Each of them makes a special effort to minister to the needs of the man on active service when travelling or on leave. They provide many services to men who are visiting London, and we were shown over some of the places where these services are provided.

The first one we visited was a Canadian Legion Hotel, which is located in a building originally constructed for a girls' club. This hotel, which has 335 beds, the Canadian Legion, is able to accommodate 1500 men, and facilities are provided for them to wash and iron their clothes while there without cost. Bed and breakfast cost three shillings, and this is about the price of a room and breakfast.

We next called at a Salvation Army hotel which is located in a former hotel, which has 335 beds. The Salvation Army, or Sally Ann, as it is frequently called, has a very special place in the minds of the troops. When we asked why, our informant could not give any special reason, except that they always seemed to be there when needed.

The Leinster Club was the hotel operated by the Y.M.C.A. which we visited and this also in what was formerly a residential hotel. We were shown through by Captain W. J. McDermid, and Capt. McMurtrie, a brother of Dr. McMurtrie, of Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. George, who own the building, manage the club for the Y.M.C.A. Fifty-five cents is the charge for bed and breakfast.

Still another former hotel, which is now operated by the Knights of St. John, was the next one we visited, and here Capt. H. McDonald, of Edmonton escorted the editors through the building. One of the features of this hotel is the fine food canteen. It is the fourth hotel in London operated by the K. of C. and a fifth was going to be opened in September, so we were informed.

The Maple Leaf Club, operated by Canadian Red Cross was another visited. The Union Jack Club is unlike the other clubs we visited in that it is a permanent service men's club having been first opened in 1907, and operated continuously ever since, and it is for all service men of the entire Empire. It is the largest one that we saw and has been visited by over one hundred thousand Canadian soldiers since the outbreak of war. It has many recreation rooms not found in the other clubs and meals are served there at all hours of the day and night.

One feature of this club is a huge memorial covering the wall of a long

YOU MUST CALL FOR THE NEW RATION BOOK

In order that you may obtain your new Ration Book, to be used commencing March 6th, you must, between February 20th and February 27th fill in the card at the back of your present Ration Book and present it along with your old Ration Book at the distributing centre in your district.

Please bear in mind that Ration Books will not be issued through the mails as formerly.

One responsible member of a family may bring in all the books for his family, and for any other person, such as a neighbor, who is unable to get to the distributing centre, provided each card is signed and completed properly by each book holder, or parent in the case of children, or guardian.

Give a great deal of help from Mrs. Vincent Massey, the wife of Canada's High Commissioner, and we found her busy serving soup there where we visited the club.

SANDS OF HAZARD

By J. B. RYAN

CHAPTER III

THE hood of the barracan had fallen back, revealing the coal-black hair of the strange girl. As Jack Storey obtained his first full glimpse of her flawless features and pale olive complexion, a sudden lunge on the part of the girl broke the grasp of her two captors.

"No, no!" she cried, plunging blindly through the gathered soldiers. "You must not hinder me."

But the police were too many. An arm whipped out, and the girl was made prisoner once more.

"Sergeant granted," "You do not wish to appear before Captain Lebeau?" Then you are too many. I am responsible for the death of this man. "I did not kill him." The girl forced herself into a measure of composure. "Nor, for that matter, did Monsieur le Capitaine."

The non-com gestured to his men. "Come. The Captain can question these people."

Jack Storey fell in step with the girl as the couple were marched along the street. "Do not be alarmed," Mademoiselle, he tried to reassure her. "The officer in charge of Ain Safa will be. We shall be free as soon as a few routine details are complied with."

She startled touched her white teeth as the girl attempted to remain in the coffee-house until the police arrived. "Why did you not remain in the coffee-house until the police arrived?"

"But we can prove that Lemodine was bent on robbery—"

"I suppose so." Her voice sank lower. "You will go free, but I—"

She took advantage of a narrowing of the street to press closer to him. "Monsieur Storey," she whispered, "I will save you from Andre Ribb. Would you help me in turn by stating that I am your sister?"

"But I have no sister—"

he began, then checked himself. "Of course, Mademoiselle. What is your name?"

"Annette," she told him. "That must be my right name will arouse no suspicion—if you do not fail me."

THE conversation was ended by their arrival at the jail building which was the headquarters of the Gestapo. The commander of the prison, Captain Lebeau, was at his desk. The captain heard the report of the sergeant, wrote the names of John Storey and Annette Storey in his ledger, then informed the prisoner that the case would be dealt with in the morning. Annette gave a part of the girl's name and was taken to Ain Safa receiving the same careful consideration and investigation as a killing in Paris itself.

Annette's disappointment over her detention was such that Storey, seated in the cheerless room, noted his cell, was inclined to the belief that the girl was in fear of the law. Yet she had risked exposure to save him from the knives of the Kahiri.

The least Storey could do was to keep up the pretence of resistance without, so far, had gone unquestioned. However, Storey had reached without the efficiency of the French, the girl was both French. Most of all, she was a prisoner. The morning that followed a sleepless night was well advanced before the door of Storey's cell was unlocked. As he preceded the guard down the corridor, he encountered Annette also being escorted to the office of Captain Lebeau.

"There is a slight irregularity here, Monsieur Storey," Lebeau studied a typewritten page in his hands. "We radioed Ghadala last night, checking on your sister."

Ghadala stated that you lived in that vicinity for almost 10 years, since your young husband came to Algeria to form a partnership in a sheep-raising business with Kaid Ibrahim. The enterprise was such since the death of the kaid five years ago. Recently you add your sheep and lands and are now on your way to the United States."

"That's my dearer," nodded Storey. "Now, about that Berber who was shot—"

"One moment, please," Captain Lebeau held up a hand, his eyes still on the printed report. "There is also a description of you which seems to—"

—one and eight-tenths meter. Height—dark brown; eyes—blue; chest—thin and now not exactly straight."

However, Lebeau looked over the top of the paper, there is no mention of any sister."

"Naturally then," Storey smiled. "Annette spent all her time in America. She must be meeting me at the airport."

"The Frenchman cleared his throat, and he dropped his official attitude long enough to smile at the girl. He glanced at the girl, then at the paper that also proved true. It grieves me to keep one so charmingly beautiful as you and key. I would have to send her to Algeria or to Vichy."

"But she makes you doubt her?" he demanded Storey. "I'll take all the blame for that street fight. She had nothing to do with it."

Lebeau explained, "Monsieur Annette, she was when these reports came in. When it was decided that Monsieur Storey and his sister, Ribb suggested that I radio a description of the Mademoiselle to the Gestapo."

"She was the girl who was shot?" he asked the girl once more. "Algers asks that you be held pending investigation. They are quite certain that you are Annette Fourrier."

"To the eyes of Lebeau the girl remained unaltered. But Storey saw one of the small hands below the level of the desk clench involuntarily."

Annette Fourrier—the name means nothing to Storey. But, noting the control face of the girl and the watchful gaze of the captain of Ain Safa, he sensed that Annette Fourrier must be a personage of importance.

"Well, Mademoiselle," queried Lebeau. "Are you Annette Fourrier?"

"I have told you, Monsieur Storey. I am afraid we cannot accept your unprovoked statements. Monsieur Storey, if she is Annette Fourrier, I shall lose my position if I allow her to go."

"A traitor to France," said Lebeau. "An agent of De Gaulle, the man who would create civil war in France. The Gestapo has already declared outlaw, you know, yet in spite of that, Annette Fourrier manages to fit from end to end of France."

Algers, he sensed that Annette Fourrier must be a personage of importance. "Well, Mademoiselle," queried Lebeau. "Are you Annette Fourrier?"

THE GLEICHEN CALL, GLEICHEN, ALBERTA.

Ribb allowed me to examine his papers. There is no reason to doubt his integrity, Mademoiselle. He is a representative of the French government."

"Monsieur," pleaded Annette Fourrier. "Hear me! It is true that a man named Andre Ribb was sent to Algeria to buy food for France. But he is a different man who goes under that name. This man is not Andre Ribb, but a Frenchman, but he is a renegade. He is neither loyal nor Free French."

"In losing the money and the authority of the real Andre Ribb to send him to be turned over to the Italian and German army in Libya."

"Captain Lebeau said thoughtfully, 'If this man is a masquerader, where is the real Andre Ribb?'"

"A man was killed in Bou Sada, the town where Andre Ribb was to begin his purchases. He was unknown, and remained unidentified because his features were washed away. Yet, a general description of the dead man tallies with that of the man whom I suspect of having taken his place."

"Suspect?" repeated Lebeau. "Then you cannot prove your charges, Mademoiselle?"

"Not yet," she admitted reluctantly. "I have trailed this Ribb across Algeria, but so far no action has been taken which would expect of me. He is in Ain Safa that he must show his hand. You say he departed this morning. Can you order that you send out a detachment of your police to see whether he has left the town toward Touggourt or turned east toward the hills?"

"This is no trick, Mademoiselle Fourrier? You lied to me in the beginning."

You say he departed this morning. Can you order that you send out a detachment of your police to see whether he has left the town toward Touggourt or turned east toward the hills?"

"This is no trick, Mademoiselle Fourrier? You lied to me in the beginning."

"Suspect?" repeated Lebeau. "Then you cannot prove your charges, Mademoiselle?"

NIGHT COUGHS

YOUR CHILD coughing at night caused by throat "croup", irritation, mucus breathing, or a cold—can often be relieved by rubbing throat and chest with VapoRub. VapoRub's potent and-vapor action loosens phlegm, relieves irritation, helps clear upper passages, thus tends to stop mucus breathing and chest congestion. VapoRub is also an invigorating restful sleep. 17¢ jar.

GOOD RESOLUTION—

ACUMULATED EXPENSES

1943—Plan Your Spending

So many bills! How can you get out of the red, have the things you need, and keep your budget balanced?

Would you object that will mean pinching pennies, MORE things to buy?—that budgets tell what you can't have. These days your budget is tight. Rent perhaps is costing much more than last year. Plan your spending so you can have what you need.

So, as 1943 draws, take stock. Estimate your outgo by listing expenses like rent, insurance, clothing, food.

Comparing your own expenses with those of people on similar incomes, you may discover what items are too high. Rent perhaps is costing much more than 20 per cent of your income.

And amassing to see how much you have just leaked away! You could have bought that new furniture or clothing twice over.

What you plan a use for every dollar, leaks are automatically guarded against. And if you buy at sales, order groceries in large size packages.

Send 15¢ in coins for your copy of "How to Budget and Buy for Better Living" to Home Service Dept., World-News, Newspaper Unit, 175 McDermott Ave., St. Winnipeg, Man. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

THE RUM ISSUE

BY FRED JONES

It is a trifle late to start the new year but better late than never. I did not think when I left the coast that I would be located in Lethbridge. All of us, some time or other have erred from the straight and narrow path and regarded with some trepidation being shipped here at government expense, but all our fears were groundless for we did not end up in the large hotel. His Majesty runs about a mile to the south and about the same distance east.

We were not sorry to leave the grand stations where we had been so long in spite of the cold welcome we received from the weatherman. Most of the boys knew what to expect, having spent many months in Alberta. Vancouver and the surrounding country would be a nice place to live but there is nothing I could see further north to attract curiosity or anyone else.

Myself and 17 others spent some time on a tiny island of about four acres. We called it Little Albatraz. It guarded one of the vital channels along the coast. We were not far from a seaplane base, but had to go back and forth in a small boat powered by an outboard motor, which are generally used to supply the posts. We were practically hidden from sight among the timber and brambles and darkness came early in the winter months. We came and went between our gun positions through hidden paths which, even a dog would have a hard time to discover.

From November on the rain became incessant and often turned to wet snow. With no recreation or diversions we came to almost hate each other. What was harmless became more acrimonious until it took great self restraint to keep from quarrelling among ourselves for no sensible reason. However, luck favored us and we enjoyed the trip out on the boat to Vancouver, and the few days we spent there before going on leave or furlough over Xmas, or New Year.

Lethbridge is a very nice city and I have already met several Gleichens, among them Art Wilson, Jim Leggett, Bill Boyce, two or three commercial travellers who used to call down that way, and a Russian boy who used to work for J. O. Bogtje.

Our camp is a good one. The city is nice and clean with good hotel, eating and other accommodation, so we should have very little to complain of and like all Albertans are inspired with the undying optimism born in every native that a Chinook will come along one of these days. I think the Chinook is the fundamental cause of western optimism after all. It is a standing pledge given by creation

OF GLEICHEN
AND VICINITY

Mrs. G. T. Jones spent a weekend at Olds visiting relatives.

Pit. Sgt. Robert Riddell is home on furlough from Manitoba. He will leave shortly for the far north.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen House of Arrowwood are spending a few days in town this week visiting their many friends.

W. C. Holup of Gleichen has enlisted in the army at Calgary. Previous to his enlistment he was employed as a trackman with the C. P. R.

Nursing Sister McDonald of Currie Barracks spent several days in town last week visiting Miss D. Brown R.N. and Miss Evans, R.N. All are graduates of the Misericordia Hospital, Edmonton.

That when things get so bad they are bound to get better.

I have a hunch that if the Allies can really get wound up right now that the Nazis will cave in by April 1st like they did in 1918, and I will risk two weeks pay on it if anyone wants to bet. After a wild break like the I had better pull my neck in but I will stay with it.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CALL
TWENTY YEARS AGO

That the people of Gleichen and district are deeply interested in the question of temperance was proven by the big crowd that attended the meeting in the Opera House. This meeting was held for the purpose of supporting the petition for government control of sale of liquor. The following were appointed to help circulate the petition in Alberta: F. McCarty, Webster, A. Wilson, Geo. Matthews, B. Corry, Peter Maclean, S. Hall, C. Hyndman, T. H. Beach, C. Bartch, L. Michael.

Jan Young had a rather serious accident while returning from a visit to his brother at Calgary. The auto he was in slid off the road and went down an embankment and was badly wrecked. Mr. Young very narrowly escaped with his life, but sustained painful injuries to his head.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Jones and Miss May Jones have moved into town. Mr. Jones retired the first of the year from the government service after 38 years with the Indian department. Miss Nettie Brown had the misfortune to fall on the ice at the long rink and break a small bone in her arm.

A ripping good game was played of the rink last night with Streetsome as opponent. The score was 2-1 in Gleichen's favor. The two Gleichen goals were made by Rip Hunter.

BOMBER PRESS

Excellent meals at low prices served in all these places, and the hostels also have very nice rooms. The men on leave can find in them accommodation equal if not superior to most hotels at a great saving in cost. The way that these services are appreciated is shown by the way that these clubs and hostels are crowded all the time.

There was one criticism which we heard and that is that Canadians are unable to buy Canadian cigarettes over there. The N. A. A. F. I. can't carry which serve the camps carry only English cigarettes which do not seem to be popular with Canadians. The complaint is that while American soldiers can buy American cigarettes in their regimental canteens to the extent of one carton a week Canadian can only buy English cigarettes in the N. A. A. F. I. canteens.

The Canadians, however, profit by the better arrangement for sending Canadian cigarettes overseas at a much better price than prevails in other countries, and if the sale of Canadian cigarettes in the canteens would stop the sending of cigarette at the 300 for one dollar price they would probably prefer to keep the status quo.

The larger camps are given wonderful entertainment by the NAAFI. E.S.N.A. which brings troops of London stars to the camp theatres. As a sample of those shows were taken to the ENSA theatre at Alkerton Admission, was limited to men in uniform, and the show was an exceptionally high class and clever review. Thousands attend these theatres each week.

All these services do their part in keeping the Canadian troops in excellent spirits.
